The Constitutional Amendment for Its Relief.

An Important Measure to be Voted Upon by the People of Missouri at the Coming Election - Reasons for Its Adoption.

It is not generally known that the General Assembly of Missouri, at its last session, submitted to the people a at least two-thirds of the time of Division constitutional amendment to be voted No. 2 can be devoted to civil causes. on at the coming election, the purpose of which is to afford the much-needed relief to the Supreme Court.

The court is now in arrears on its docket it takes about two and a half years to reach it in the regular course on the Supreme Court docket. If a new trial is awarded, six months at least will intervene before a second verdict can be had, and in case of a second appeal, which is not unusual, two and a half more years will clapse before a second decision can be had in the Supreme Court. Thus over five years will have intervened the Supreme Court on the second It not infrequently happens that a third trial is granted because of errors and mistakes in the proceedings of the trial court, and in that event almost a decade passes between the institution of the suit and its final determination in the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court can not catch up with the docket and thus afford the necessary relief unless its working power shall in some way be increased. An examination of the number of cases brought to the Court within the last two years, and a comparison of the same with the number of cases disposed of, will show the last statement to be true. The work of the court for the last two years-or rather, last four terms-may be summarized

Gain of cases on docket of court ...

Total gain in two years..... Thus the court, as now constituted, in addition to being already behind 851 cases on its docket, is actually falling further behind at the rate of thirty-four and one-half cases per year. During the last two years 725 new cases, averaging 36212 per year, have been filed in the court, and this number is not likely to decrease in the future. On the contrary, the probabilities are in favor of a steady in crease-commensurate with the State's growing population and wealth. It becomes a matter of easy arithmetical calculation to determine the time when the court, at the same rate of loss on the docket, will be floundering in the maelstrom of a docket of a thousand or more cases, as is the case new with the Supreme Court of the United States.

The present condition of the docket has existed for years, and this has been true notwithstanding the work of the Commis- fall seeding and a large acreage of sion during the two years of its existence, the Kansas City Court of Appeals and the enlargement of the territorial jurisdiction of the St. Louis Court of Appeals. It was

6. The amendment affords the best possible means of relief under the present circumstances, and, if rejected, there is but little hope for relief to litigants in the near future. 7. The amendment, by limiting the determination of the criminal cases in general to one division of the will require special attention on the part of the judges of that division to criminal jurisprudence, and secure more satisfactory results in the decision of that class of cases. Besides, the criminal cases average only about fifty per year, and

& The Constitution (Bill of Rights. Art. IL. sec. 10) provides: 'That courts of justice shall be open to every person, and cert ain remedy afforded to every injury to person, property or character, and that right and justice should be administered without sale, denial or delay." Under the present condibetween the first appeal and a judgment in tion of affairs the above constitutional guaranty is a dead letter; the proposed amendment will revivify it, and for that reason, if for none other, should be adopted. 10. The amendment has, at the last two annual meetings, received the sanction and approval of the State Bar Association, which includes in its membership many of the best legal minds of the State of both political parties. This fact, while not a controling one, is not without weight in consider. ing the merits of the proposed amendment

THE Aleutians, of Alaska, make fire by dipping two pieces of quartz in sulphur, which abounds in the islands, and striking them together over a small heap of down on which sulphur has been sprinkled. Some tribes of Esquimaux use two pieces of iron pyrites or pyrites and flint, in the same way.

THE religion of Dahomeyland is to the effect that any soldier killed while fighting white men goes straight to Heaven to become a handsome young man of twenty-five, who is provided with fifteen beautiful wives and all the game he can eat for one thousand years. If she is to be married to a man who has discarded or lost his former wife, the shackles which the former wife wore are put upon the new bride's limbs, and she is fed until they are filled up to the proper thickness.

THE Cochin China people strike two pieces of bamboo together and ignite tinder. The coating of amorphous, silexlike flint on the surface of the bamboo yields a spark at a sharp blow. The traveler, Mr. W. T. Homaday, says that the jungles are frequently fired by the excessive friction of the bamboos during a gale. The Tungaras of British North Borneo and the Ternate Malays carry attached to the girdle a joint of bamboo, often finely carved, containing tinder and a fragment of porcelain. Irreconcilable Elements.

Like "crabbed age and youth," Mussulman and Christian populations of Bulgaria, it appears, "can not live together;" though there seems to be no adequate reason for the wholesale emigration of the Mussulman population, of whom no fewer than six hundred thousand have left the country since the Russo-Turkish war, representing an annual loss to the exchequer of £500,000, and causing a large proportion of the soil to remain uncultivated. Dispassionate observers give as the chief reason that "a once-dominant element finds it hard to submit to the rule of the formerly submissive raya." The said, gives great offense to the Mussulmans. Added to these influences are the exhortations of the special "khojas" or priests from Turkey, who

Mr. Lincoln was of a peculiarly sympathetic and kindly nature. These strong characteristics influenced, very happily, as it proved, his entire political career. They would not seem, at first glance, to be effieient aids to political success; but in the peculiar emergency which Lincoln, in the providence of God, was called to meet, no vessel of common clay could possibly have become the "chosen of the Lord."

Those acquainted with him from boyhood tnew that early griefs tinged his whole ife with sadness. His partner in the zrocery business at Salem, was "Uncle" Billy Green, of Tallula, Ill., who used at night, when the customers were few, to hold the grammar while Lincoln recited his

It was to his sympathetic ear Lincoln told the story of his love for sweet Ann Rut ledge; and he, in return, offered what com fort he could when poor Ann died, and Lincoln's great heart nearly broke.

"After Ann died," says "Uncle" Billy on stormy nights, when the wind blew the rain against the roof. Abe would set thar in the grocery, his elbows on his knees, his face in his hands, and the tears runnin' through his fingers. I hated to see him feel bad, an' I'd say, 'Abe don't cry;' an' he'd look up an' say 'I can't help it, Bill, the rain's a fallin' on her.' "

There are many who can sympathize with this overpowering grief, as they think of a .ost loved one, when "the rain's a failin' on ner." What adds poignancy to the grief some times is the thought that the lost one might have been saved. Fortunate, indeed, is William Johnson, o Corona, L. face like a thousand needles. Wind forty miles an iour. You say a man couldn't stand such exposure? No, he couldn't, without just the proper clothing. And there's only one outfit that can keep a man both warm and dry at such a time, and that is the "Fish Brand Sicker." They are guaranteed storm-proof, waterproof, and wind-proof. Inside one of them, you are as much out of the weather as if indoors. They are Fight, but warm. Being re-enforced throughout, they never rip; and the buttons are wire-fastened. No railroad man who has once tried one would be without it for ten times its cost. Beware of worthless imitations, every garment stamped with "Fish Brand" Trade Mark. Don't accept any inferior coat when you can have the "Fish Brand Slicker" delivered without extra cost. Particulars and illustrated catalogue free.
